

Power Point Presentation Requirements

Due Thursday, March 26th. See guidelines, below:

Using Microsoft PowerPoint, create a presentation with 4 slides to explain a concept in your area of major academic interest. This is a presentation that will show prospective students why your chosen area is worthy of pursuit – and why they should consider it. General areas could include such things as:

- scientific process
- historical event
- biography of a world figure
- work of literature or art
- ecological issues

BE SPECIFIC. For example, if your area of interest is Organic Chemistry, you might do a brief four-slide presentation on one small but fascinating aspect of the discovery of DNA'

Your presentation should include:

- Title slide
- Title slide should have an appropriate title with the name of the presentation – you may include other required elements on this slide along with your name, computer number and class time
- graphics, including an image downloaded from the Website and inserted into the presentation, (if website has no images, you may download an image from another site.)
- a screen capture one of the Websites that you use in your presentation
- one or more slide transitions (wipe, fade, etc.)
- an animated effect (words that fly or fade in and out, etc.)
- an appropriate animated gif image that you make yourself especially for the PPT
- a hyperlink to a Website you used in your research
- complete notes for each slide to indicate additional information you would present verbally with the slide (2 minute presentation)
- a bibliography slide listing your source correctly cited (MLA style shown below) – hyperlink your sources .(Note: you may choose to use a fifth slide for your bibliography if you choose – equal credit for 4 or 5 slides.)
- Excellence of design
